National News

- 10 cities with the most burglaries

3.5.13 - MSN - While crime rates have been falling across the nation, there are still some bad eggs out there. And if you forget to lock your doors, you may want to avoid Texas. According to the FBI, burglaries accounted for approximately $4.8 billion in lost property in the United States in 2011, the most recent year for which data exist. With almost 2.2 million such crimes committed, this puts the average loss per burglary at $2,185. More Info

More Info

- Police cameras studies look at long-term effects on crime

3.5.13 - The Post-Standard - Few studies have looked at the long-term impact of police security cameras in reducing crime. The John Jay College of Criminal Justice, in New York City, knew of no authoritative studies on police cameras. The Police Executive Research Fund, in Washington, D.C., couldn't point to any research either, though they did share testimonies from police chiefs touting the technology. The biggest problem may be the systems are too new: Experts say the lasting effects of cameras may not be known until several years' worth of data can be analyzed. The few published studies point to varying levels of success. More Info
